Reconstruction Before Repositioning

JEREMIAH 18:1-6

SR. MINISTER MARCUS T. WATKINS

Before God elevates you, He reconstructs you.
Before He repositions you, He reshapes you.
And the only requirement is surrender.

The Problem — The Clay Was Marred

- The vessel was marred in the potter's hand (Jeremiah 18:4), meaning it was structurally flawed — not just scratched, but unfit for its intended purpose.
- The flaw was exposed while being shaped, showing that even in God's hands, hidden issues can surface.
- God allows controlled crises to reveal internal cracks (pride, sin, stubbornness) before they destroy our destiny.

Key Insight:

The breaking isn't to ruin you — it's to expose what would have ruined you later.

The Process — The Potter Reworked the Clay

- The potter did not discard the clay — he started over with the same material.
- Reconstruction requires pressure, reshaping, and restarting.
- God's hands are both inside and outside the clay — meaning He works on our inward character and outward circumstances simultaneously.
- The process is intimate, continuous, and sometimes painful — but purposeful.

Key Insight:

God is not fixing the old you; He is recreating you into who you were meant to be.

The Purpose — The Potter's Prerogative

- The potter has the right to reshape the clay because he owns it.
- God's reconstruction prepares us to hold what He is about to pour into us.
- Repositioning only happens after yielding to the redesign.
- The pressure guarantees preparation for greater purpose.

Key Insight:

Reconstruction is proof that repositioning is coming.
